'I didn't say nothin' agin Ann Marier,' teased Jim. "I was talkin' agin the tech."

"Well, thank all right. Ha—oo!—
ys let's do somethin', larrison or armony o' somethin'."

A bucket of tar and some feathers was right, for which young Anderson was do to pay, and Bill Day insisted on buy-fifteen feet of rope. "Bosh," as he d, "after you git the feathers on the d, you may—may you may want to help him to rousht, you know, on a hickory
ab. Ha—oop! Come along, boys!"

"Let's do de somethin' Indikerous, ef it thin' but a little larrison."

And so they went gulping down the and, nine drunken fools. For it is one of the beauties of Lynch law, that, however justifiable it may seem in some instances, it always opens the way to villainous acts. Some of my readers will protest that a man was never lynched for the crime of being a Dutchman. Which only shows how little they know of the intense prejudice against the Dutch, and the violence of the early War some day people will not believe that men were killed in California for being Dutchmen.

Of the nine who started, one, the drunkard, fell off and broke his arm; the remaining eight, up to the cabin of Gottschalk. I don't remember the names of

"I don't know what to do," said the mother at her late sewing machine, having dragged Gottlieb out of his bed. I shut the door now when I recall one such outrage which I was an unwilling witness. No one can throw the pope round Gottlieb's neck and declare for hanging. Bill Day agreed that it would be so ludicrous, you know!

"Vot hash I tun? Hay! Vot vos y vos? Vos dank me already, hey? cried the honest German, who was willing enough

"Take care, boys; let me. talk to the woman. I'll ang the case." "You can't speak Dutch no more nup you can't speak English no more West." "Blam'd if I can't, though. Hyer, my son, fink't Dutch."

"Now," said Bill, turning to the other two, "what did I tell you? We can see, your boy August is a thief."

"He's not a thief!" said the old man.

"Shut up your jaw. I say he is. No more of this!"

"Not vor!" broke in Gottlieb.

"Believe it's all your own fault."

Here the crowd fell into a wrangle. It was not so easy to hang a man when a woman stood there pleading for him. Besides, Bob Short insisted that hang was arsony in the first degree, and the better not do it. To this Bill Day assented. He said he 'sposed tar and feather was only larceny in the second degree. A man it would be, role ludicrous.

low confused cries of "Bring on the tar" began to be raised. Norman stood for hanging. Drink always intensifies his meanness. But the tar couldn't be found. The man whom they had been bringing by the road side with a broken wheel had carried the tar, and had been well coated with it himself in his fall.

And with that the rope was thrown trotter's neck, and he was hurried off to the nearest tree. The rope was then tied over a limb, and a drunken half-dozen men were ready to pull, while Norman Anderson held the moose, and valiant Bill Day looked on to keep off Mrs. Weble.
"All ready! Pull up! Ha-ou-ou-ou!"

out Bill Day, and the crowd pelted Mrs. Wehle had slipped of the main, and the volunteer executioners one over another in such a way as to make the derisive laughter of Bill Day, who thought it perfectly ludicrous. But before the laugh had finished, the indignant Gottlieb had knocked Bill Day over, and sent Norman after him. The blow sobered them a little, and suddenly destroyed the resolution to commit "arson," or do any ing else ludicrous. But Norman was serious, and under his load Wehle's arms were now bound with the rope, and a consultation was held, during which little Wilhelmina pleaded for her father's office, and more by her tears, and the ringing of her chubby hands, than by any words. Bill Day said he be blamed if that little Dutch gal's takin' on so did murder make him feel worse acquainted.

know. But the mob would not let him without doing something. So it was decided to give Gottlieb a good ducking in the river, and send him into Kentucky with a warning not to come back. Then, as he went down the ravine, past Andrew's castle, the river. Mrs. Wehle followed, believing that her husband would be drowned, and the Wilhelmians ran and pulled the alarm and awakened the Backwoods Philosophers, who then threw themselves among them.

on the other shore, while the rest stood and hallooed like madmen to prevent any alarm that Wehle might raise attracting attention on the other side.

CHAPTER XXIV.
THE GIANT GREAT-HEART.

AS SOON AS Andrew's staff, the "Griddle," was brought back, and the ruffians had come all up the ravine, Andrew left Mirabeau sitting by the fire in the room round the castle, while he crossed the river in a skiff after Gottlieb. Little Wilhelmina looked on, going with him, and as she had

A Thrilling Duel.

Both Combatants Killed.

(From the N. Y. Herald, Nov. 4.)

About four o'clock yesterday afternoon, some romance of the romantic history of the city of New York, was enacted in the streets of the city.

A duel was fought between two men, in the back room on the top floor of the hotel, and at once word by the death of the combatants.

They found it locked, however, and Officer Hendon applied his shoulder to it without success. He then applied his shoulder to it without success. He then applied his shoulder to it without success.

to raise the price of milk from 4d. per quart to 5d. per quart, but this has been refused, and a penny extra on the milk would be sufficient.

As already briefly reported, the Calton Roman Catholic chapel, which was occupied by Father O'Keefe, has been attacked and utterly wrecked. It appears that the large force of police which was left in charge of the matter, were drawn recently, and only two constables remained as Father O'Keefe's house, arrangements were made for an attack on the chapel, and the police were ordered to leave the chapel at noon on Monday. The attack was obtained by knocking holes in the wall in three places. The mob then entered the house with great violence, the furniture was thrown into the public street, and the roof was taken off. As the house was very thickly experienced by the mob, and the mob's extraordinary part of the affair is that although a magistrate and more than a dozen policemen were present, no attempt appears to have been made to follow up the attacking party. This is a sad case, owing to the large attendance of the mob, the audacity of the police, and the fact that Mr. O'Keefe was present, and appealed to the police for assistance.

At the Calton station, on Monday, twenty-eight persons were presented by the Crown for having on Monday, the 11th inst., formed part of a riotous mob, and were subsequently arrested by the police.

THE PRINCE IN INDIA.

Our telegrams of the 8th inst. conveyed the gratifying intelligence that His Majesty's ship Albatross, conveying the Prince of Wales and suite, had left a remarkably pleasant voyage, arrived at Bombay. His Royal Highness was received with that characteristic loyalty which is even more marked and demonstrative in the colonies than in the mother country, where the presence of Royalty is more frequent, and consequently more familiar. The audience of the 10th inst. at the distant portions of the Empire. At Bombay the enthusiasm has been immense, as is evidenced by the announcement that the festivities connected with the Prince's arrival are to be continued for a week, and on a most magnificent scale. We note with much pleasure the enthusiasm of the masses in this most important part of the great Indian empire, as the natives are reported to have received the Prince's arrival as a most joyful event, and that all the expected good results will flow from it, in causing a still further spread of loyalty in the British possessions and creating a better feeling among the independent Princes whose territories border British India, some of whom have of late evinced a rather hostile disposition. Wonder has been expressed on a great many hands at the magnificence of the Prince's retinue, and the numerous troops of the Oriental contingent—these are the natives in display and especially of magnificence in personal adornment—it will occur to the reader that it is well that the son of our great Queen should be prepared to excel even the luxurious Hindoo and Brahman Princes, whom he will be called upon to meet, as well in his personal adornment, as in the richness of his retinue and the magnificence of the presents which will be made, as an emblem of his mission.

These means alone on the Eastern potentates be taught to appreciate the high station of our future ruler and the vastness and wealth of the great Empire whose destiny he will hereafter arrange. It is now no secret that the visit of the Prince of Wales to India is assigned to the negotiations with the native Princes whose provinces closely adjoin the British territory, by gaining their confidence and friendship, Russia is constantly pushing forward her conquests in the direction of our Indian frontiers, and it is wise and politic, if possible, to barter of hostile, instead of friendly states on the frontiers of the possessions of the Crown and those of the Queen, so that, should trouble arise, the Russian forces would have to fight their way into British India, instead of being assisted in their march, and thus enable them to give the British to prepare for the opening of the Queen's jubilee, as the exigencies of the case might require. That a struggle is anticipated, and that probably at no very distant day, is evidenced by the fact that these diplomatic missions have been assigned to the Prince, in whose hands the fate of the mission may be confidently anticipated.

Therefore it will be seen how much importance attaches to the outfit of the Prince and his attendants, and the gorgeousness of the presents which are to be exchanged with the native rulers.

Being, in common with the generosity of Englishmen, endowed with a love of solid sports—a trait in his character which we support first led him to decide to visit India—His Royal Highness will probably, under experienced direction, engage in the exciting and dangerous sport of tiger-hunting, and in the pursuit of other large game which abounds in the Eastern wilds. In this field of adventure, as the Prince is noted as a first-class shot, and is moreover endowed with the proverbial English courage, we also anticipate for him a considerable amount of success.

Ritons the world over will watch the movements of their future king with intense interest and loyal solicitude, while his every success in his diplomatic mission and in the field sports as he goes to seek.

MONTREAL CENTRE.—A despatch from Montreal on the 8th, says: Mr. Devlin's meeting to-night was largely attended. The first part of the evening was devoted to the election of a committee, and the remainder to the reading of the report of the committee on the petition of the Prince of Wales on his failure from the Senate. After leaving the hall, Mr. Devlin, accompanied by a large number of his friends, proceeded to the residence of Mr. Devlin, where he was met by a large number of his friends, and where he remained until a late hour of the night.

Human Sacrifice at Abidjan.

A European, who appears to have occupied an official position in West Africa, sends to the London Times a short article, the contents of which are as follows:—

Abidjan, the capital of the Ivory Coast, is a city of about 100,000 inhabitants. It is situated on the coast of the Gulf of Benue, and is the most important port of the country. The climate is very hot, and the population is very dense. The people are of various races, and are very superstitious. They believe in the existence of spirits, and are very fond of sacrifices. One of the most common sacrifices is the sacrifice of a human being. This is done in the following manner:—

The victim is first killed, and then his body is cut up into small pieces. These pieces are then placed in a large pot, and are cooked with various herbs and spices. The resulting soup is then drunk by the people. This is done in the belief that it will bring them good luck, and will protect them from evil spirits. The practice of human sacrifice is very common in West Africa, and is one of the most barbarous customs of the continent. It is a custom which has been practiced for centuries, and is still practiced in many parts of the continent. It is a custom which is very offensive to the European mind, and is one of the main reasons why the Europeans have been so successful in conquering the continent.

Being chosen, and by the choice of the community, the victim is killed. The victim is then cut up into small pieces, and these pieces are placed in a large pot. The pot is then filled with water, and the pieces are cooked. The resulting soup is then drunk by the people. This is done in the belief that it will bring them good luck, and will protect them from evil spirits. MASONRY AND POLITICS.

This question arising out of the tactics of the Liberal party in Montreal, during the election campaign, between Messrs. White and Wakeman, still occupies the attention of the people and press of the Dominion.

"Masons" who understand what masonry touches, have been writing through the columns of the Montreal press, contending that neither politician nor mason has any thing whatever to do with the principles of the order, therefore the fact of a Protestant being elected to the office of Grand Master, or a Roman Catholic being elected to the office of Grand Master, should not be a reason for the Roman Catholic Church to urge his defeat in an election contest. While this is being done in defence of the ancient Order, the Liberals are arguing with regard to the fact of a Protestant being elected to the office of Grand Master, or a Roman Catholic being elected to the office of Grand Master, should not be a reason for the Roman Catholic Church to urge his defeat in an election contest.

The fact of a Protestant being elected to the office of Grand Master, or a Roman Catholic being elected to the office of Grand Master, should not be a reason for the Roman Catholic Church to urge his defeat in an election contest.

EAST NORTHUMBERLAND.

Mr. Forth has again been returned for the constituency by a majority of 125.

The result was not unexpected by those who knew the constituency. The vote cast shows a large question that the contest has been more a matter of opinion than of principle.

The instructions formulated from the Roman Catholic Church on Monday, that of a political character. The vote cast was 1-17.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

A MAN LITERALLY GROUND TO PIECES.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1875.

AMONG THE TRACK DISCOVERY OF HIS BODY DECEASED A LADY-OWNED BY THE FIRM OF HARRIS—HOW THE ACCIDENT OCCURRED.

We extract from the Essex Standard of the 10th inst., the following description of the manner in which the late Philip L. Corville met a fearful death in this city on the night of the 4th inst.

One of the most terrible railroad accidents that ever occurred took place last night at the foot of North Water street. A locomotive numbered 244 was coming westward with a passenger coach in front of it, which it was shifting from one track to another. When about 500 feet from the foot of North Water street, the locomotive was struck by a car, which had just started from the foot of North Water street. The car was struck by the locomotive, and the driver was killed.

This bill is expected to be introduced in the House of Commons in the near future.

THE HON. MR. PATTENBERG'S SPEECH.

MR. PATTENBERG'S SPEECH. The Hon. Mr. Pattenberg, in his speech, has shown that he is a man of great ability and of great courage. He has shown that he is a man who is not afraid to speak the truth, and who is not afraid to stand up for his principles.

SECTARIAN PREJUDICES.

The Hamilton Times, in a very elaborate article on the West Toronto election, attributes the result to a direct command of the Government, but seeks to cover up the fact that the Government had no such command. The article is a very good example of the kind of journalism that is to be expected from the Times.

ELECTION DOGGERS.

The timing of election doggers in order to influence the minds of electors is a well known fact. It is a fact that is well known to all who are interested in the subject.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1875

NO. 150

Loyalty of the Grits.

From the London Standard, (N1).

A very prominent place in the latest batch of Canadian newspapers is given to a "speech made" by Mr. Mackenzie, the Premier, to his constituents at Barrie, in which, while reviewing the policy of his Administration, he takes the opportunity of explaining what may be presumed to be the latest views of the "Liberal party" in Canada upon the question of British connections.

those who have paid any attention to the process of building up a Liberal party in the Dominion during the last two years will be not a little interested in following the Canadian Premier in this expedition to the "back of the bush" to solve the local questions of the "back of the bush." It was, certainly, the first time that the Dominion, it must, certainly, be said, was high time we should understand the idea of a Canadian Liberal's idea of his duty towards the Empire. If there has been any doubt or misgiving on this point—Mr. Mackenzie himself has been the object of any suspicions which he considers just—if the Liberal party in Canada has been misunderstood—it is principally due to the equivocal acts of the members that Government and the distinct speeches and confused opinions of its supporters. We find, for instance, in one of the recent Canadian Journals a declaration of Liberal members, taken from a local Parliamentary Companion of the year, which describes some of them as "advocates of British connection," while others are "advocates of Canadian independence." - some of them are down as Free-traders, others as Protectionists. Even among the Ministers, high officials who have been appointed to the Ministry we perceive there are gentlemen who have distinguished themselves their public declarations in favor of the dependence of Canada. If we examine some of the principal measures which have been identified with Mr. Mackenzie, we shall find them to consist in a reversal of the Imperial policy of his predecessor; an attempt to make a separate treaty with the United States, to the prejudice of Great Britain; an endeavor to violate the terms of the Confederation to the prejudice of one of its younger members; a Supreme Court Act, aimed at depriving British subjects in Canada of their most sacred rights, and the En-

Crown one of its essential Imperial privileges, and generally a disposition to thwart or to neglect Imperial rights in favor of purely Canadian provincial or partial interests. It is true that nearly these measures have been abortive—the Canadian obligations to the Empire have been discharged—that the Pacific Railway, though delayed, is not frustrated—that the Reciprocity Treaty is dead beyond hope or possibility of resurrection—that the Supreme Court Act, in respect of the section abolishing the appeal to the Privy Council, has been passed. But it is true that the Liberal party in Canada is not only not disposed to do more, but is not disposed to do less.

We looked, therefore, with some anxiety to Mr. Mackenzie's explanation of some of these transactions, so misunderstood by the people of England, and nothing better than that we should be right as to the real policy of the Canadian Liberal party. We have to a certain extent been satisfied as to what Mr. Mackenzie intends in the future, although we are still unable to reconcile his declarations with some of the measures which his constituents have had the credit of passing since 1866. In the first place, the

It seems that Mr. Mackenzie is extremely discontented with the Washington Treaty, finding it, in its consequences, to be "extremes" and "humiliating." We do not know that we differ greatly from Mr. Mackenzie in this opinion. But when we come to examine Mr.
Mackenzie's proposals for remedying some of the evils of that unfortunate treaty, and for endeavoring to make the best of a bad business, we fail to reconcile Mr. Mackenzie's either with a wise consideration for the interests of Canada or a loyal adherence to the cause of the Empire. Mr. Mackenzie speaks so obviously of their being some provisions of that treaty to be carried out, declaring it to be "impossible" to perpetrate any of those provisions in any but one prejudicial to British and Canadian interests. Considering that there is now a joint commission sitting to take up some of those provisions in a matter of extreme interest to Canada, we cannot think it highly imprudent of the Canadian Prime Minister to make such a declaration. It surely cannot be Mr. McKenzie's object to discredit the Canadian claims on the United States on account of this declaration because he himself has the light of them in his own attempt at Reciprocity Treaty. The Minister proposed to throw in the money commission payable by the United States to Canada on account of the fisheries as a bribe to tempt the United States to enter into the Reciprocity Treaty could not have had them of any great value; but it seems that to make light of these claims every time they are under discussion a foreign nation is a piece of unwisdom, say unpatriotism, entirely in character with that treaty which Mr. Mackenzie calls detestable and humiliating. It is the

of his government, Mr. MacKenzie says, that matters relating to Canada in the United States "should be dealt with Canadian subjects who understand business and know the people of the United States," and he conceives that policy will be carried out "as a result of course by the British Government purely according to Canadian ideas of public policy." Mr. MacKenzie has the least idea that in the future an impartial statesman will seek to introduce objections to frontier between this (1) (Canada) and the United States considered from a purely Canadian point of view.

"point. The responsibility of this arrangement, it is suggested, will be finally with the British Government, while with the Canadian Government would rest the responsibility with the Canadian people." In fact, not of treaty obligations but all legislation Mackenzie insists, shall be entered in the future by the Canadian Government from a purely Canadian point of view, Britain being unanimously allowed credit of her "technical" responsibility. On these terms Mr. Mackenzie is prepared to be loyal to the British cause, becoming up the "closest possible with Britain," while reserving to his government the right to act for themselves in all their relations to the United States. Relations which "do not concern the action of the British people." Having been

Town and Vicinity.

The Christmas visitor is coming.

Town-Covered.—A regular meeting of the Town Council is appointed to be held to-morrow.

What is the Christmas visitor?

Merry-makers.—There were no prisoners for trial this morning, and no one being held for hearing to-day, there was no business in Court.

New Canadian Factory.—It will be seen by advertisement that Mr. John F. Fennell has opened a new carriage factory at 101 St. Lawrence, opposite Burrows's ice factory.

The Market.—The weather and the roads were too much for buyers and sellers this morning, business being the lightest of the year. No grain was received to-day.

The Cells.—There were six persons in the cells on Saturday night—five for prisoners. Last night there were eight, and the cells, only one whom was a prisoner.

Look out for the Christmas visitor.

Sergeants.—There were a few sleighs on this morning, and the streets were in many places owing to the heavy drift caused by the gale, and the "going" is far from being good.

Sergeant.—Yesterday was one of the most disagreeable days of the season, snow falling heavily most of the day, the wind being easterly and the air being cold and raw. During the night a heavy gale set in from the north-west, which drifted the snow about, and whistled around the buildings in the wildest fashion. The gusts, which were of frequent occurrence, were of great force, and some damage has resulted therefrom to property.

Is it a spirit or human form? The Christmas visitor.

The Late James Quinn.—The members of the De Wolf Co. No. 7, of Oswego, have forwarded to Miss H. No. 1, of this town, a very fine photograph, neatly framed, of the late James Quinn, a member of both Companies. The gift is highly acceptable to the recipients, and the beautiful portrait will hang in their hall as a remembrance of their lamented comrade. It will also serve as an additional reminder of the many kindnesses received by Miss H. from the members of the De Wolf Co. No. 7.

St. Andrew's Day.—To-morrow will occur the Anniversary of St. Andrew, the patron saint of Scotland, which the St. Andrew's Society of the County of Hastings will celebrate in the usual manner.

At 1:30 p.m., the procession will be formed at Nelson's Hall and will proceed to St. Andrew's Church, where a service will be held at 2 p.m., by the Rev. M. W. McLean, one of the Society's Chaplains. The annual dinner will be held at the De Wolf House, and the usual "good time" will no doubt be enjoyed.

Coming! Coming! Coming! What? The Christmas visitor.

Attorneys-General.—On Saturday night a man named James Hamilton, a resident of the town, attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a knife. He partially succeeded, having severed the skin in his stomach, but the knife was too dull to accomplish the murderous work, and he had been drinking heavily of late and it is supposed that he was laboring under an attack of delirium tremens when he made the attempt upon his life. He was given into the custody of the police, and was taken up to the cells, but was liberated, according to one appearing to prosecute.

Providence.—Mrs. and Return to proximity again, according to the old mythology, to warn terrestrial inhabitants of stirring events to come. Those two brilliant stars in the southern heavens but a hand-breadth apart, two flashing diamonds in the haze of "night," which have attracted so much attention recently, are, the fabled devourer of his own children, and Mars, the god of war. The superstitions have an excellent opportunity to try in this astronomical appearance to imagine all sorts of baneful and destructive events to come.

Horse Stealing.—We are informed that on the night of the 20th inst., three entered the stables of Messrs. McMillan and Davidson on the front of Balfour, and stole from the former a valuable black mare and cut a quantity of harness. Owing to some disturbance having frightened the robbers, the stolen animal was left tied to Anniversary Services.

Services in connection with the mission of the Methodist Church, Brooklyn, were held in the Bridge Street, Brooklyn, Street, West Belleville and Kingston Road Church yesterday.

The Rev. Mr. Sutherland, Missionary Secretary, presided in the morning to a large and attentive congregation. In the afternoon the annual meeting of the Sunday School was held, when interesting addresses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Sutherland and Prof. Macoun, whose remarks were listened to with particular attention, he having lately visited the mission stations in the North West, during his belated journey in the West, returning from his tour of inspection, as prospering satisfactorily. Rev. E. J. Dowart, editor of the Christian Herald, preached in the evening to a congregation of the members, considering the tendency of the weather. In the West, Belleville Church the Rev. W. H. Elmsley preached in the morning and addressed the Sunday School in the afternoon. The pulpit was occupied in the evening by Rev. Mr. Sutherland, Rev. S. P. Rogers, and the Rev. Mr. Dowart, who addressed the Sunday School in the afternoon, and at night the Rev. Mr. Elmsley occupied the pulpit. In the Kingston Road Church, the Rev. Mr. Elmsley was held in the afternoon, when Rev. W. B. Rogers preached. The annual missionary meeting will be held in the Bridge Street Church this evening, when addresses will be delivered by Rev. Messrs. Sutherland, Dowart and Rogers. Tomorrow evening the missionary meeting will be held in the West Belleville and Kingston Road Church; and on Wednesday evening the final meeting will be held in the Kingston Road Church.

LATEST FROM MANITOBA.

(By Telegraph. WEDNESDAY, Nov. 27.)

Four cases of Canadian cattle, sent to the Province were burned at Brandon on Thursday, on a train going west.

The Victoria Skating Rink, located near the river, was opened on Thursday, and was well filled by skaters and spectators. The military band was in attendance. The rink is a first class in every respect, in view of the patronage of the Lieutenant Governor, and will be the fashionable resort through the winter.

Sifton, Ward & Co., intend employing throughout the winter about 100 men on the Red River and Portage sections of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Provisions of all kinds are very scarce, the sudden closing of navigation preventing the importation of a sufficient quantity for the Province. The best flour is now $5.00 per hundred and potatoes $1.25 per bushel, and a further advance is feared.

Cabbage are 81 per bushel. The bakers have formed a union, and have raised the price of a two-pound loaf from ten to twelve, and a half cents per pound.

Business is moderately brisk, with active demand for breadstuffs.

Singular cases of the thermometer have been 26 below zero during the week.

TURKEY.

ALLIANCE BETWEEN MONTENEGRO AND HERZEGOVINA.

BUTERA, Nov. 28.—It is stated here that with a view to preventing Austria's intervention, Montenegro has proposed to Serbia an offensive and defensive alliance in favor of Herzegovina, and the offer to other countries will take joint action in April.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A special force ordered to the battle at Plevna really obtained a positive defeat for the Turks, who in this official despatch on Nov. 17, claimed that they had routed the insurgents.
